Clinicas de Salud del Pueblo Highlights Oral Health for Latino Children in Rural Areas like Ours
Nearly half of Latino children ages 2-8 suffer tooth decay, the highest child rate in U.S.

(Brawley, CA) – During National Children’s Dental Health Month in February, dentists and educators from Clinicas de Salud del Pueblo are available to speak to the importance of early dental care for children in our nation, 60 percent of whom have had cavities by age 5. Our dentists and educators can address how parents can model good dental habits and take steps to give their children a healthy start in life. It is vital to know, for example, that children should have a dental check-up by their first birthday.

Studies show that children living in poverty are twice as likely to suffer tooth decay than their more affluent peers. Given that nearly 25% of residents in Imperial County are estimated to live below the poverty level, our children are at greater risk for tooth decay. Latino children ages 2-8 have the highest rate of cavities (46%), compared to Black (44%) and White children (31%). Clinicas de Salud del Pueblo is concerned about the increased risk for Latino children in rural areas like Imperial County since tooth decay can lead to problems with eating, speaking, learning and socializing, often resulting in school absenteeism and lower self-esteem.

Clinicas de Salud del Pueblo is partnering with NCLR (National Council of La Raza) for the Healthy and Ready for the Future campaign to encourage Latino parents in rural areas to establish a “dental” home and obtain oral care early for their children. Early dental care is an important part of giving children a healthy start in life! For more local support, please contact Clinicas de Salud del Pueblo, Outreach Department at (760) 344-9951 ext. 10155 or 10126.
